

Lensmodern's award-winning photographers exhibit work

The work of some of the most iconic photographers will be showcased at the Art Open House exhibition hosted by media accountants Kingston Smith W1.

The photographers are all members of Lensmodern, an online gallery and picture library where individuals can view, sample and ultimately buy some of the world's best photographic images.

"The idea for the site came from a group of professional photographers looking for an outlet for their award-winning work," explains Bob Miller, a photographer and director of Lensmodern. "Today, we display some of the world's most creative images, enabling us to secure a niche at the top end of the market. To maintain our high standards, only photographers whose work we consider exceptional are invited to exhibit their work."

Graham Tyler, partner at Kingston Smith W1, said: "I am delighted that Lensmodern have decided to showcase their work at our offices. This is an opportunity for our guests to experience a range of photographic styles and techniques in a relaxed environment."

Last year, legendary director, writer and composer Mike Figgis exhibited a selection of his photographic work at Kingston Smith W1's offices. Taken over a period of more than 30 years the collection included images of celebrity icons Muhammad Ali, Kate Moss and Natalie Imbruglia.
