Tom joined Kingston Smith in January 2002 and became a partner in our City office in 2009.

As a general practice partner, Tom acts for businesses across a range of activities and of all sizes, from entrepreneurs starting up to established international groups, providing audit, accounting, taxation and general business advice. He has particular knowledge of and interest in the financial services, leisure and hospitality, property and retail sectors.

Tom has considerable experience providing support and guidance to a large number of financial services businesses, including securities and futures firms, investment management firms, and mortgage and general insurance firms. He is highly involved in our dedicated Financial Services team, which provides specialist advice to firms about managing their relationship with the FSA, and is a member of the ICAEW's Financial Services Faculty.

As well as his client responsibilities Tom sits on Kingston Smith's Technical Committee and is a member of our Leisure and Hospitality team.
