Graham qualified as a Chartered Accountant in 1983 with Howard Tilly and progressed in the expanded firm of Baker Tilly to be the youngest ever partner in 1990. During this time he had responsibility for some of the firm's biggest clients but most significantly developed an interest in Media and was Head of the firm's Media Group.

He left Baker Tilly in 1992 to form his own practice; GT Direct and more fully develop his work in the Media Sector. During the next 5 years he built a significant practice in this specialist niche until merging with Dover Childs in 1997 to form Dover Childs Tyler.

His expertise covers all areas of Media but particularly film and television production and providing direct hands-on financial advice to both individuals and companies in the Sector. In this regard his experience covers both the UK and US markets.

He has also advised on a significant number of sales and acquisitions of companies in this area.
