

Entrepreneurial Businesses

In our competitive and ever changing world, getting the right advice when you need it often marks the difference between success and failure. The Kingston Smith ethos is to help our clients succeed in meeting their commercial and financial goals.

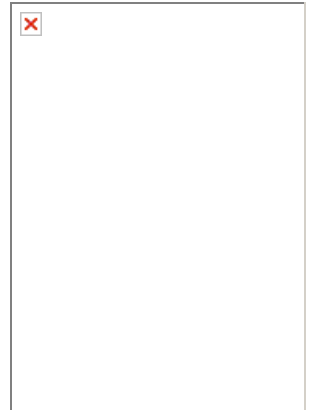

How we can help you

Most of our client organisations are managed by the people who own them or who originally started them. Through our many years' experience of dealing with all types of entrepreneur we understand how you think, and the various stages of the business cycle that your organisation will experience. This has enabled us to build up a wide range of specialist services in addition to audit and accounting work, to support you through the opportunity and uncertainty that comes with change.

To do so, our partners formulate a deep understanding of the marketplace and environment in which each client operates so that we can tailor the right Kingston Smith service just when you need it.

We also offer all the services and skills you may require at any stage of the business life cycle from strategic and business planning, to succession and exit strategies.
